

To whom it may concern

On 5/11/2010, during a family roots trip in Poland, I unintentionally met Dr. Kopowka, the manager of the Treblinka site. After I told him the story of my mother who was a Holocaust survivor, he showed me a book that he wrote which included my mother's story that appears on page 500 of the book. My mother was born in Kochiri and following the obliteration of her family, she was found by a Polish family by the name of Malikovski, who adopted her and raised her as their own in the town of Darohichin. The book also includes stories of members of my mother's family in the same town of Darohichin

I was extremely moved to see my mother's story in the book. Dr. Edward Kopowka sent me the book via Pawel, his co-writer, who is currently in Israel and with whom I met in Jerusalem in order to receive the book.

Unfortunately, the book is written in Polish and our being members of the second and third generation, we are unable to read or write Polish. Of the few survivors who can speak Polish, the majority were young children at the time of the Holocaust and they therefore did not learn to read or write in Polish and most of them have forgotten how to speak the language.

I would be very happy if you could arrange for the book to be translated into Hebrew so that my family and I and the coming generations will be able to read the story of my mother's survival.

The story is an historic exhibit for the future generations.

Yours faithfully,
